Tourist Attraction

Ajmer is now a trade center for manufactured goods including wool textiles, hosiery, shoes, soap, and pharmaceuticals.

Dargāh Sharīf of Khwāja Mu'īnuddīn Chishtī is situated at the foot of the Tārāgaḥ hill marking the daily halting places of the royal pilgrim. It is one of the holiest places of worship in India for the people of all faiths who hold the saint, the high esteem and reverence. The Khwaja Saheb, is considered a 'living spirit' of peace and harmony and enjoys universal respect and devotion ever since he set his holy feet on the soil of Hindustan.

Pushkar is about 23 Kilometers away from Ajmer, and is an important tourist destination. Pushkar is famous for the Pushkar Lake and the 14th century Brahma temple dedicated to Brahma, the God head of the Hindu pantheon supposed to be the creator of the universe. Pushkar is also famous for its annual Pushkar Camel Fair.

Soni Ji Ki Nasiyan - It is a digambara Jain monument made in Gold and Emeralds which was built way back in 1865 A.D. by Sri Moolchand Soni. Its main chamber is known as Swarna Nagari (also called as city of gold). Here the wooden figures of Ayodhya and Mt. Sumeru are gold plated which makes it different from other temples. It defines the Jain tradition in a very beautiful manner.

Mayo College was established in 1875 by Lord Mayo, Viceroy of India, is one of the most prestigious institute of the country. The architecture of the school buildings evokes the grandeur of erstwhile princely Rajasthan.

Phool Mahal Palace Kishangarh - This palace has the massive Fort of Kishangarh as its backdrop and is washed by the monsoon fed Gundalao Lake in front, an architectural setting very rarely seen in Rajput history. In 1870 Maharaja Prithee Singh, the 15th Ruler of Kishangarh constructed Phool Mahal as his monsoon palace.

Naraili Jain Temples - the replica of Akshardham Temple on top of a hill.
